Dr. T. C. McHenry of Benton, died at his residence, Wednesday morning about 9 o'clock. He was confined to the bed for several weeks, with a complication of diseases. The doctor had an extensive practice in the counties of Columbia, Luzerne, Sullivan and Lycoming, he was faithfnl to the patients in charge, and possibly sacrificed his own life. During the heated Summer, he had many serious cases of sickness and no doubt overworked himself. He was a leading spirit in all the enterprises in his locality, and his word was accepted by all. He had accumulated a large amount of money, and was generous in its use.

Mr. McHenry was born in Greenwood township, February 9th, 1844, a son of Benjamin and Lavina (Conner) McHenry. Raised on a farm until eighteen years of age, when he entered the academy of New Columbus, Luzerne county. After remaining in the academy 3 years he went to Lewisburg University and graduated 1867. He began the study of medicine with Dr. Bradley of Bloomsburg; attended lectures at Ann Harbor, Mich., graduating in 1870. He located at Benton, being married to Susan Millard in February, 1871; she died within a year. In 1874 he remarried to Lizzie Ikeler, who with two children survive him. His daughter Lulu M. is aged 17, and son, Benjamin J., 10.

The county looses one of its best citizens and his community a successand faithful physician.

TOWNSHIP INSTITUTE.

The first Sunday school township institute was held in Centre township Friday evening of last week in the Union Church.

Prof. Kocher, assistant principal of the high school at Bloomsburg, gave an interesting address on the subject, "A teacher's responsibility for a scholar's learning."

First: A teacher is not responsible where there is no capacity. Second: A teacher can have little responsibility where there is no spiritual perception. Third: Where character is crystalized and fixed and settled, a teacher is not responsible for the teaching. But the teacher is responsible for the manner in which she teaches.

Rev. Sharretts told some of the needs of the Sunday School.

1. Consecrated teachers.
2. A superintendent who superintends; a man of tact, of character, of patience, an active, earnest, energetic, worker.
3. A teachers meeting.
4. A library of good books.

J. L. Wolverton added as a need, the co-operation of parents. Prof. Kocher spoke of the large Bible Lesson Pictures. Myron I. Low named the baptism of the Holy Spirit as a great all important need and A. W. Spear referred to a need of deeper interest on the part of all the older members of the school.

The exercises were enlivened by cornet solos with organ accompanied by Miss Helen M. Low and Geo. L. Low, also by a solo by Miss Clara White and a recitation by Miss Lizzie Hidlay and a duet by the Misses Spear.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are:

Myron I. Low, President; Miss Hattie White, Sec; Wm. S. Hess, Treas.

A. W. Spear, Levi Remley, Miss H. M. Low, } Executive Committee.

Vastine Will Case.

When Judge Sittser came down from Tunkhannock on Monday he was given the case of Amos Vastine against Jacob H. Vastine, Hugh H. Vastine, Simon Vastine, Ezra Vastine, Elizabeth Ann Ogleby, intermarried with Dr. James Ogleby, devisees and legatees, and Simon Vastine and Ezra H. Vastine, executors of the said alleged last will and testament of Mrs. Elizabeth Vastine. These people are from Rush township, except Dr. Jacob Vastine, who lives at Catawissa, and Mrs. Dr. Ogleby, who lives at Danville. Mrs. Elizabeth Vastine was left a widow some forty years ago, and found herself in weeds with a farm. She work hard and was frugal, and, of course, accumulated property, as people of that disposition always do. In March, 1890, she was buried in the old church yard of the Lutheran church at Elysburg, and left about $50,000. When the will come to be read it was found that the eldest son, Amos Vastine, had been cut off with a hundred dollars. Of course he was dissatisfied; what son who had tried to be dutiful would not be? When it was sought to probate the will he objected and appealed. Judge Bucher wrote an opinion, somewhat stinging in its nature, granting an issue. So the case has at last come to trial. The plaintiff sought to establish two things: first, that his mother had not sufficient testamentary capacity to properly dispose of her estate at the time she made her last will, which was on Dec. 9, 1889, and, second, that she was unduly influenced by her other sons to cut him short. It was shown that Mrs. Vastine had fallen from a hay mow and injured herself; that she had made a will in June, 1889, and in Dec., when the second one was made, she had been taken to Catawissa, and there she made the will cutting Amos short. A strong testimony was also given to show that the brothers had said they would get their mother to make a will equalizing the will made by Mrs. Vastine's sister, Mary Hurst, who had bequeathed more to Amos than the others. Conversations were sworn to in which the brothers made various statements. First that they did not know such will was made, and, second it was too bad if she had made such a will, etc.

The defendants proved that Mrs. Vastine was a woman of strong will and strong prejudices; that there was a family feud among the Hurshes, her brothers and sisters, dating back 50 years, and when one of the bachelor brothers would die he would divide his property equally among the other members of the family, excepting Mrs. Vastine, and to her perhaps a dollar would be left with the advice that it be used in the purchase of a Bible; that the last of the Hursh family was Mary Ann and, Amos Vastine, her nephew, had a great deal to do with dictating Mary Ann's will; that he had told Mrs. Vastine this will was all right, but unfortunately for him Mary Ann died before Mrs. Vastine and it was discovered that the will was all wrong, and that Amos had got too much from his aunt Mary it was the pleasure of his mother to cut him short in her will. The defendants also showed that there was no influence brought to bear on their mother to induce her to make the will she did, and that it was made of her own volition. At last the counsel for the defendant dictated the following to the reporer.

Now, to-wit, September 1st, 1892, the appeal of Amos Vastine from the decree of the register admitting the will of Elizabetn H. Vastine to probate is withdrawn, the jury discharged and the case settled in the following manner:

The defendants to pay to Amos Vastine $4,000, less the amount of a judgment in favor of Elizabeth H. Vastine against Amos Vastine, and interest only to be computed on said judgment up to the time of the death of Elizabeth H. Vastine; the plaintiff to pay liis own witnesses, and the defendants to pay all court charges and their witnesses fees. Upon the payment of the sum of $4,000, less the judgment aforesaid, Amos Vastine to execute and deliver to the defendants a release in writing of all his right, title, and interest whatsoever in the real and personal estate of said Elizabeth H. Vastine under her will or otherwise.

Thus has happily ended what might have been another family feud, growing more bitter as the years rolled by. All have conceded something and now that a compromise has been effected it is to be hoped that brothers and sisters may meet under the old roof tree, and vow that years to come shall only bring them nearer together and cement the ties of brotherly love.—Sunbury daily.

Scenery, Props &c.

Special new Scenery and Props on the same style exactly as that used in the London production has been painted by Seavey & Co., of New York City for the American performance of Col. Theodore Hoppenheimer's great London production of Widow Murphy's Goat. This is purely a comedy-drama in three acts. It is extremely funny and is full of songs, Irish reels, dances etc. In fact there is not a dull moment in the play. The action of the play causes laughter from beginning to end. The scenery is made to fit any stage in America and will positively be used in our city during the presentation of Widow Murphy's Goat.

Bloomsburg Opera House, Wednesday, September 14th.

Dr. Carey had a crowded house at the Opera House last Saturday evening. He gives a ten cent show, but those in attendance say it far surpasses many of the so-called 50 cent shows. It took about twenty minutes to empty the Opera House Saturday night. If the Dr. should remain here long the Opera House would be enlarged, and additional entrance doors made. Some provision ought to be made for large audiences to get out of the hall in a quick time.

The Danville democratic club swung a magnificent sign last Thursday, bearing the portraits of Cieveland and Stevenson. In the evening they had a great meeting and banquet. Senator Herring of Bloomsburg gave an interesting address that held the closest attention of the audience and called earnest applause. Montour county democrats are wide awake and seem determined to raise their democratic majority so that it will require four digits to count it

Mr. Snyder has served on the committee for several years and his past experience has taught him that a good committeeman means plenty of work and few thanks. We are sorry to know that he could not be persuaded to remain on the committee, because he has been a good worker, and through his influence, a large democratic vote has been secured.

JUST IN TIME.

She followed him all day long like a little dog. If he ran, she ran, fell and rubbed her knees, cried and was lifted again. Thus it went on from the first's beginning to its end.

He grew tired of her, and would have liked to run away from her. But he did not dare, for she was his master's daughter, and he was—well, there was the rub—he did not know who he was.

He woke up one day and found himself born. The sky was above him, and there would have been earth beneath his feet if he had not pointed them in the wrong direction. He was christened in a random way Ola, and was put on the parish, as they say.

Jeus Oestruo took him as his share of the parish burdens. When he was six years old he could be made useful enough to earn his food and shelter. Jeus Oestruo then wanted to send him away, but his little daughter Birgit was so fond of him that he decided to keep him.

When Ola was twelve years old he could kick a cap from a nail high above his head. Birgit was so fond of Ola that everything he did seemed admirable. Once she said a bad word and Ola was whipped for it.

So Ola was sent to the mountains; he roamed with his alpine horn over the wide mountain plains, ate berries, caught fish, set traps and was happy. He hardly thought once of the little girl down in the valley.

One day late in the summer she came up to the dairy with her mother. She was carried up on horseback in a basket. When she saw him she flung herself down upon the grass and screamed with delight.

But when her mother had reached the hut she ran up to him and hugged him. While the cattle were being milked he went to look after his things. She followed him, proud in the thought that he tolerated her.

"Look here," he cried, lifting up a brown hare, "isn't that a big fellow?"

"What is it?" she asked.

"It is a hare."

"No, it isn't a hare. A hare is white."

"It is brown in Summer. It changes its skin."

"Has he two skins, one inside the other?"

Instead of answering he took his knife and cut the hare's skin.

"No," he said, "he hasn't got more'n one."

* * * * * * *

The time came when he had to go to the parson to prepare for confirmation. It so happened that she went the same year.

But, though he had a coat now, it was a cast off one of Jeus Oestruo's, which was much too big for him. His boots, too, and his trousers had seen better days before they made his acquaintance.

He walked aside from the rest; his ears burned when any one looked at him. But if any one dared to mock him he used a pair of fists which inspired respect.

He was a handsome lad and his frowsy hair made him look ugly. Heavy thoughts came to him, and a fierce, defiant spirit was kindled within him.

It was at such a time that Birget sought him and spoke kindly to him.

"You mustn't mind the girls," she said; "they laugh at everything. They don't mean anything by it. It's just a way they have."

"Somebody will come to harm if you ever do it" he answered fiercely.

"That is foolish talk," she gently remonstrated. "I know you too well, Ola. You wouldn't harm me."

"Ah, you don't understand me," he said. "It's no use talking."

"Oh, yes, I do understand you, Ola," she replied, with a smile, "and I wish you would let me say one thing to you before I go."

"Say it."

"I wish—I wish," she stammered, while a quick blush sprang to her cheeks. "No, I think I won't say it, after all," she finished, and turned to go.

"Yes, say it," he entreated, seizing her hand.

"Well, I—I wish you could do as the hare, change your skin."

She drew her hand away from his and ran down the hillside, so that the stones and dry leaves flew about her.

That night he picked a quarrel with Thorger Sletten, who was said to be attentive to Birgit, and he thrashed him. All the following Winter he kept watch of her from afar, and picked quarrels with everybody whom she seemed to favor.

"Change my skin," he pondered. "Change my skin, like the hare. How, oh, how can I do it?"

This thought followed him day and night. One day, in the Spring, an emmigrant ship bound for America appeared at the mouth of the river.

Ola packed together his few traps and went up to Oestruo's to say good-by. He met Birgit in the birch grove behind the barn. It was the time when the buds were bursting and the swallows had just returned.

"Well, Ola, where are you going?" she asked, as she saw him coming with bundle and staff in hand.

"To America."

"America!" She cried. "America!" The answer seemed to frighten her. She turned pale and caught hold of a birch tree for support. He watched her narrowly.

"What are you going to do in America, Ola?" she asked softly.

"Change my skin," he replied with a vigor that startled her. "And if I come back within five years with a changed skin will you promise to wait for me?"

"I promise," she whispered, weeping quietly upon his shoulder.

* * * * *

Five years from that day a young man was seen hastening up the hillside to Oestruo. He had a big slouch hat on his head and he was well dressed.

His face was strong, square and determined, his eyes danced with joy, for in his pocket he had a royal marriage license with which he meant to surprise somebody up at Oestruo's farm. It was five years to-day since he left her, and it was five years she had promised to wait for him.

For this hour he had toiled, saved and suffered for five weary years. He had been a silver miner in Leadville when the place was yet new, and he had sold his claim for $50,000.

As he was hurrying along an old woman, who was sitting by the roadside, hailed him.

"Gentlefolks out walking to-day?" she said holding out her hand for a penny.

"Gentlefolks?" he cried, with a happy laugh. "Why, Gurid, I'm Ola who used to herd cattle at Oestruo's dairy."

"You Ola! who was on the parish? Then you must have changed your skin."

"That was what I went to America for," he answered, laughing.

The church lay half way up the hillside. There Ola sat down to rest, for he had walked far and was tired. Presently he heard music up under the ledge of the forest; there was one clarinet and several fiddles.

A bridal party! Yes, there was the bride, with a silver crown upon her head and shining brooches upon her bosom.

The procession came nearer. Now the master of the ceremonies opened the church doors wide and went to meet the bride and groom.

Ola sat still like a rock; but a strange numbness came over him. As the party drew near to the gate of the churchyard he arose and stood, tall and grave, in the middle of the road. Then came Birgit Oestruo and Thorger Sletten. She looked pale and sad, he defiant.

"You didn't expect me to your wedding, Birgit Oestruo?" he said, and stared hard at her. She gave a scream; the crown fell from her head; she rushed forward and flung her arms about his neck.

"Now come," he cried, "whoever dares and I'll make a merry bridal."

Jeus Oestruo stepped forward and spoke. His voice shook with wrath and the veins swelled upon his brow.

"Here I am," he said. "If you want the girl you shall fight for her."

"Not with you, old man," retorted Ola; "but with Thorger I'll fight. Let him come forward."

The bridal guests made a ring on the green and the bridegroom came slowly forward.

"Hard luck," he said, "to have to fight for your bride on your wedding day."

Fight? Birgit, who in her happiness had been blind and deaf, woke up with a start. She unwound her arms from Ola's neck and stepped up between the two men.

"Oh, do not fight, do not fight!" she entreated, holding out her hands first to one claimant and then to the other.

"You know, father, for whom I have waited for these five years. You know whom I have loved since I was a child. But you used force against me and threats. Now he has come back. I am no longer afraid of you."

"Whoever will be my wedding guest let him follow," shouted Ola, "for I have in my hand a royal license to be married to Birgit, Jeus Oestruo's daughter."

"All that money can buy you shall have," he added. "I'll make a wedding the fame of which shall be heard in seven parishes around."

He took the bride's arm and marched boldly into the church.

The wedding guests looked at Jeus Oestruo, who was venting his wrath upon the groom.

"You coward!" he yelled, "you let the girl be snatched away before your very nose. I am glad enough to be rid of such a son-in-law. Come, folks; we'll have our wedding yet. A girl belongs to him who can catch her."

With a wrathful snort he stalked in through the open church door, and the wedding guests slowly followed.—Boston Globe.

A Bride With Some Good Points.

Some years ago in an agricultural district there lived a farmer who wanted to sell one of his cows. There was not at that time a weekly paper in which he could advertise, so he resolved to follow the local custom and ask the vicar of the parish when giving out his notices at church to advertise the cow.

"Yes, farmer," said the vicar, "I would be willing to oblige you, but you don't attend my church."

Presently, however, they struck a bargain that the vicar should advertise the cow, and the man in return promised to go to church. Unfortunately the man was deaf, and on the Sunday following, when the vicar gave out the banns of marriage between Joseph So-and-so, bachelor, and Sarah So-and-so, spinster, the farmer took it for granted that the vicar was giving out particulars of his cow, and shouted out: "You might as well say while you are about it that she is a most gentle creature, entirely free from vice, and is strongly crossed with the Alderney breed."

INVENTIONS FOR THE HOME.

An effectual fly fan has three small disks at the end of each arm which revolve independently as the large arms go about.

A novel household tool combines a hatchet and ice pick. A handy ice shave recently patented shaves and collects ice from a block without removing it from the refrigerator.

A dustpan and broom combined, by means of which rubbish may be swept up and removed without the sweeper altering her upright position, will prove a boon to those whose backs have ached over the old fashioned pans requiring to be held by the handle.

Those housewives who object to a cuspidor because it must necessarily be cleaned occasionally will appreciate a new invention, by means of which one can thoroughly clean the interior and empty it as well without once touching that useful article.

GREELEY MET GOOD SOCIETY.

When He was in Paris the Great Horace Was in Jail.

When Horace Greeley visited Paris in 1855 he was the victim of a mistake that caused him to spend a night behind the bars of the debtors' prison in the Rue de Clichy.

A French sculptor had sent a statue for exhibition to the World's Fair at New York, of which Mr. Greeley was one of the managers; the statue had been returned in an injured condition, and the sculptor took the method of causing Mr. Greeley's arrest to recover damages. A friend of Mr. Greeley's, Mr. Field, went to the prison the next morning. When he entered the large common room in which the prisoners and their friends were assembled he saw a singular scene. In one corner squatted a laboring man in his blouse, surrounded by his wife and children who had brought him some delicacies for his Sunday dinner. In another corner lounged a fashionably dressed young gentleman. The room was filled with the most strangely contrasted groups.

"Standing in the middle of it," says Mr. Field, wearing his old white overcoat, and with his hat on the back of his head, his countenance wreathed in smiles, flanked on either side by a United States minister, stood Horace Greeley. To refrain from laughing was impossible.

"'Field,' he exclaimed, 'this has been one of the most fortunate incidents in my life! Without it I doubt if I ever should have had the opportunity to see good society. You know I know nothing about it at home. I have never associated with the people who compose it there. I dare say they are very good people, but they are not my people.

"'Last evening at dinner we had a prince at the head of the table, and I was flanked on one side by a count and on the other side by a baron.'

"'If I only remain here long enough I shall not only learn the French language but good manners into the bargain.'"

Of course when the case came up for trial Mr. Greeley was released.—Youth's Companion.

The Thrifty Redskin.

It is said that the simple-minded Indian of the plains makes many an honest penny by manufacturing and selling to the curious and credulous "tenderfoot." During the last winter "the arrow that slew Custer" was twice sold to English travellers, although it is well known that Custer's body was untouched by arrows. Navajo blankets from Massachusetts and Indian pipes from Connecticut are common articles of sale. The tom toms eagerly bought as relics are often nothing less than government cheese-boxes covered with sheepskin. Pipes which the Indians exhibit and sell in their tepees for seven and eight dollars may be bought at the post traders' for two dollars. The Apache no longer has any use for a spear, and there are few genuine ones to be found, but he still makes them out of long poles and boiler iron to sell to the tenderfoot. So also he now uses the Winchester in place of a bow and arrow, but he spends many a Sunday making bows for collections, which he disposes of for an extortionate sum as heirlooms that were formerly used in the chase by his father, Plenty Bear, or some other distinguished warrior.

The Safest Place.

A person, apprehensive of danger from lightning, happening, during the time of the thunder to be in a house not secured by conductors, would do well to avoid sitting near the chimney, near a looking-glass, or any gilt picture or wainscot, says the "Family Doctor." The safest place is in the middle of the room, so it be not under a metal lustre suspended by a chain, sitting on one chair and laying the feet up in another. It is still safer to bring two or three mattresses or beds in the middle of the room, and, folding them up double, place the chair upon them; for those not being so good conductors as the walls, the lightning will not choose an interrupted course through the air of the room and the bedding when it can go through a continued and better conductor—the wall. But, when it can be had, a hammock or swinging bed, suspended by silk cords equally distant from the wall on every side, and from the ceiling and floor above and below, affords the safest situation a person can have in any room whatever, and one which indeed may be deemed quite free from danger of any stroke of lightning.

The Smart Dogs of Egypt.

When an Egyptian dog wishes to drink at the Nile he goes a short distance up the river and howls for some time. The crocodiles being attracted by the sound, immediately crowd to the place, while the dog hastily runs to the part which the crocodiles have left and drinks in safety.

He Wasn't Afraid to Die.

It would be well if we were all as faithful to duty as the old English carpenter, on his deathbed, who was asked if he was prepared to die. "Why not?" he answered. "I've worked at my trade 50 years, and never drur a screw without greasin' it."

The Oldest Oil Painting.

The oldest oil painting extant is probably a picture of a Madonna and child. The date of its production is marked upon it, 886, about the time of Charlemagne. It is the property of France.

Queer Mittens.

The consumption of tea stands midway between that of wine and beer. The largest annual consumption per head is in Western Australia, at 10.70 pounds. Great Britain figures at 4.70, the United States at 1.40, and Germany at .07.

Sweden is the most Protestant country, for out of a population of 4,774,409 only 910 are Roman Catholics.

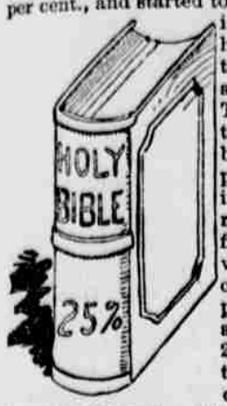
taxed trough and pumped untaxed water for them from a taxed pump.

"He hitched them to a plow taxed 45 per cent., and started to the field to put in many lonely hours preparing the ground for another crop. The wife swept the floor with a broom taxed 35 per cent., went into the best room, the taxed floor covered with an ingrain carpet taxed 60 per cent. She got a needle, taxed 25 per cent., and threaded it with cotton thread taxed 74 per cent. At first she thought she would make herself a dress of some printed cotton, valued at over fifteen cents per yard, taxed 45 per cent., but she at last concluded to make her husband some clothes of common woolen goods taxed 111 per cent. After sewing some hours on the taxed material with a taxed needle and thread, sitting in a taxed chair on a taxed carpet which covered a taxed floor, she went out to work in the garden, and she took a hoe and shovel taxed 45 per cent. with which to dig up the weeds. After the long, weary day is over the farmer comes home. He feeds the chickens, pigs, horses and cattle and swine, and comes through a taxed door and sits at his taxed table once more, which is lighted with a glass lamp taxed 180 per cent.



"After supper the farmer takes down his Bible, taxed 25 per cent., reads a chapter from the holy book, thanks God that he has cast his lot in the 'freest country on earth,' and then retires and covers himself with a blanket taxed 111 per cent.

"The years slowly pass away; the farmer grows old; the hair of his head is white as snow; his good wife is wrinkled and bent; finally he dies and he is put in a coffin taxed 110 per cent The minister comes and reads the service of the church, and he is carried to his long home, and over the ground his children erect a monument to his memory which is taxed 80 per cent.

"That is the way," continued the neighbor, "that we pay our government taxes, but you never get any tax receipts. If you did you could take just what you paid and that would create a revolution inside of six months, but then these taxes do not all go to the government. Of every dollar of taxes raised in this way one dollar is paid over to the government and four dollars to the millionaire manufacturers."

Then the old farmer sat and thought again. At last he said:

"I understand it now. I can account for it all. They got my beef, corn, wheat and pork. I have been robbed. They have been stealing the proceeds of my labor all my life. Of all I have raised they have only left me barely enough to feed my wife and children."

The True Faith Expounded.

Never has a great party, intent upon the promotion of right and justice, had better incentive for effort than is now presented to us. Turning our eyes to the plain people of the land we see them burdened as consumers with a tariff system that unjustly and relentlessly demands from them in the purchase of the necessaries and comforts of life an amount scarcely met by the wages of hard and steady toil, while the exactions thus wrung from them build up and increase the fortunes of those for whose benefit the injustice is perpetuated.

We see the farmer listening to a delusive story that fills his mind with advantage, while his pocket is robbed by the stealthy hand of high protection. Our workingmen are still told the tale, oft repeated in spite of its demonstrated falsity, that the existing protective tariff is a boon to them, and that under its beneficent operation their wages must increase—while as they listen scenes are enacted in the very abiding place of high protection that mock the hopes of toil and attest the tender mercy the workingman receives from those made selfish and sordid by unjust governmental favors.

We oppose earnestly and stubbornly the theory upon which our opponents seek to justify and uphold tariff laws.—Grover Cleveland's Speech Accepting Democratic Nomination for President.

Shadow Instead of the Substance.

It seems to us that, under the circumstances, the fiction of an American register is a pretty small matter. What the people of this country wish for is something actual and substantial, an American merchant marine in every sense of the word; but so far they seem to be likely to miss the substance and have extended to them only the shadow. —Boston Herald.

"Suspended by the Thumbs."

The supporters of Carnegie and Harrison tell us here in the west that the way to be "progressive" is to vote the ticket of the Pinkerton plutocracy; to stand by the McKinley and force bills; to stretch out our thumbs to the rack of Carnegie "protection." But they have had the west suspended by the thumbs long enough.—St. Louis Republic.

Not the Same Old Stroy.

From the Detroit Free Press.

The man was standing at his store door on Jefferson avenue talking to a stranger.

"See that lady across the steet?" he said.

"Yes," was the brief reply.

"Her beauty won't kill her, I guess."

"Well, it's queer how things go in this world," said the man, retrospectively, "Twenty years ago she was one of the prettiest girls in Detroit, and I was one of a dozen fellows who tried to marry her."

"Same old story" observed the stranger; "some other fellow not half the man you are got her?"

"No, he didn't either."

"No?"

"No I married her myself, and she is coming over here now for $25 to get a fall hat with," and the man smiled as if he were glad of it.

Our Public Schools

Are the main-stay of our republic. In them are being cultivated the minds which are to be our future lawmakers and leaders in every walk in life. How essential it is that these minds should be united to strong, healthy bodies. So many children suffer from impurities and poisons in the blood that it is a wonder that they ever grow up to be men and women. Many parents cannot find words strong enough to express their gratitude to Hood's Sarsaparilla for its good effect upon their children. Scrofula, salt rheum and other diseases of the blood are effectually and permanently cured by this excellent medicine, and the whole being is given strength to resist attacks of disease.

A Little Absent-Minded.

From the Chicago News-Record.

"Ah, me valet tells me I'm going to a wedding to-morrow. Miss Pelf's to be married to some feliah, you know, but cahn't think of his confounded name."

"Why, oldman, you're to marry her yourself."

"By Jove, so I am. What memory you've got!"

Some fancy the charms of the lily-white maid,
Of etherial form and languishing eye,
Who faints in the sunshine and droops in the shade,
And is always "just ready to die."

But give me the girl of the sunshiney face,
The blood in whose veins courses healthy and free,
With the vigor of youth in her movements of grace,
Oh, that is the maiden for me!

She is the girl to "tie to" for life. The sickly, complaining woman may be an object of love and pity, but she ceases to be a "thing of beauty" worn down by female weakness and disorders, subject to hysteria and a martyr to bearing down pains. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a sure cure for these distressing complaints, and will transform the feeble, drooping sufferer into a healthy, happy, blooming woman. Guaranteed to give satisfaction in every case, or money paid for it refunded.

What He Had Learned.

From the Harper's Bazar.

"Well, Jack," said the visitor, "they tell me you have a velocipede."

"Yes, sir."

"Have you learned to ride it yet?"

"No sir; I've only learned how to fall off so far."

The plague of breaking lamp-chimneys is abroad in the land. There are two sorts of chimneys; brittle and tough. Ninety-nine in a hundred are brittle. The worst are imported from Germany. The best are Macbeth's "Pearl-top" & "Pearl-glass."

Two sorts as to workmanship; fine and coarse. The fine are Macbeth's "Pearl-top" and "Pearl-glass." The coarse are rough and out of proportion; misfits and misshapen; they do not make a good draft; they smoke.

Two sorts as to glass; transparent and gray. "Pearl-top" and "Pearl-glass" are clear, fine and tough—not tough against accident—tough against heat.

LURES FOR POOR FISHES.

Artificial Baits Calculated to Deceive the Wisest Finny Victims.

"These little green frogs are something new for bait," said a dealer in anglers' supplies to a Star writer. "They are made of soft India rubber. Here are earthworms, also of the same material threaded on hooks. They save a great deal of trouble when real ones are scarce, and young ladies provided with them while fishing do not have occasion to constantly annoy their male escorts with requests that their lines be attended to. Pike and certain other carnivorous fishes very much enjoy a small mouse on the rare occasions when such a luxury is obtainable, and so these little counterfeit mice are supplied to tempt their appetites. Imitations of various kinds of animals for use as bait are becoming more numerous every season. In this box of counterfeit insects are grasshoppers, lady bugs, bronze and black beetles, caterpillars and bees. It is not necessary to mention the hundreds of species of moths and other bugs that are reproduced in the shape of artificial 'flies,' made of bits of feathers and fur, that are gathered from all parts of the world for the purpose. This horrible looking thing represents in a life-like manner a 'helgramite'—the larvæ of the dragon fly, otherwise known as the 'devil's darning needle.' Here are some artificial shrimps, which serve almost as well for bait as real ones. Another novelty is the 'floating minnow.' It is intended for trolling in shallow waters, where there are lilypads or snags on the bottom which are likely to foul the hook. So long as the boat is going ahead the minnow travels about half a foot beneath the surface; but when the boat pauses the minnow comes to the top instead of sinking and getting caught. Imitation 'sand eels' are a new kind of lure and 'phantom minnows' are in greater variety this year than ever before, counterfeiting actual live ones with surprising accuracy, as you may see for yourself. All these things are for fresh water fishing. The only kind of artificial bait that will deceive a salt-water fish is a gleaming troll such as these mother-of-pearl 'squids' which will take the eye of a bluefish better than any live bait that ever was invented."—Washington Star.

The High Cost of Bicycles.

The question why the high grade bicycle costs so much—a sum beyond the means of the ordinary wage-earner—is often asked. The Iron Age gives some interesting information in answer. In the first place the bicycle must be made on the interchangeable principle, so that a missing or broken part can be supplied by the factory at once. All of such parts undergo a rigid system of inspection, being submitted to the severe strains which they must stand while the machine is in use. Main parts, like the sprocket wheel, hubs, etc., are gauged, the allowance for variation being one quarter of a thousandth. A variation in excess of this throws the piece out. The method of stringing the wheel is thus described: The outer ends of the spokes are threaded in order to enter the hardened brass nipple, the cap of which is, of course, on the outer side of the rim. The boy who strings the wheel up merely tightens the nipples sufficiently to hold the parts together. After this the wheel goes to an expert workman, who tightens the spokes, bringing them all under the desired tension. The wheel is then mounted on an axle and turned, a piece of chalk held near the rim serving to indicate any irregularity. To correct such defects and make the wheel perfectly true, the nipples are tightened or loosened. This is a simple matter, and yet one requiring great judgment.

The brazing of the joints and the making of the felloe or iron to receive the rubber tire are also operations requiring the greatest precision and delicacy of handling. In short, there is no part of the modern bicycle that can be turned out without the minutest attention to detail. The day has not come when it can be made factory fashion.

Somnambulism.

Memory is responsible for many of the phenomena of somnambulism. A distinguished physician once dreamed that he was listening to a remarkable piece of music performed by some singers. He membered the melody on awakening, and was so delighted with it that he wrote it down. Several years afterward, as he was turning over some old sheets of music that he had never seen before—as he thought—he came upon the very melody he had dreamed. He could not remember that he had ever seen or heard this melody except in his dream, and yet it is beyond doubt that he had heard it, that he had forgotten it, and that it had been reproduced in his dream in the manner recorded. A servant girl, while in a somnambulistic state, wrote down the pages of an astronomical treatise, with calculations and delineations. It was found that this was taken from the Encyclopædia Britannica, which she said she had read in the library. But when awake she could not recall a word of it. De Boismont mentions the case of a widow who was sued for a debt of her deceased husband, which she knew was paid. But she could not find the receipt. Greatly disturbed, she went to bed and dreamed that her husband came to her and said that the receipt was in a velvet bag in a hidden drawer in his desk. This she found on waking to be the case. Of course, she had known of the hiding-place, but had forgotten. The physiologist Burdach was told one morning that his wife had been seen the night before walking on the roof of the church. He took the opportunity at her next sleep to question her, when she gave a full account of her proceedings, and mentioned having hurt her left foot by a nail on the roof. When awake she was asked about the wound in her foot, but could give no explanation. Instances of this sort seem to show that we possess a latent memory, the contents of which partially return in dreams, sometimes with but often without recollection.

Jumps at the conclusion—The sleepy man in church.

JUDGE PETER TURNEY.

The Man Whom Tennessee Democrats Will Elect Governor.

Judge Turney, the chief justice of the supreme court of Tennessee, whom the Democrats recently selected as their gubernatorial candidate, is one of the most remarkable men in the south. Born in Jasper, Tenn., on the 22d of September, 1827, he is about sixty-five years of age, and nearly half of these years has been spent in the public service, civil and military.

JUDGE PETER TURNEY.

He organized a regiment (the First Tennessee Confederate infantry, better known as the "Hog Drivers") in April, 1861, and left Tennessee for the Confederate army in Virginia on the 1st of May ensuing, his being the first regiment from Tennessee which entered the Confederate service. This regiment, complimented on many occasions for gallantry, he commanded throughout the war, except so much of it as his wounds in battle deprived him of power to do. Several times slightly wounded, he was twice severely so in the battle of Fredericksburg, Dec. 13, 1862.

Early in that engagement he was knocked down by a fragment of an exploded shell, and later shot through the mouth with a minie ball and left on the field for dead. Subsequently carried from the field, he recovered after months of severe suffering, and rejoining his command remained with it until the surrender of the Confederate armies. In 1870 he was elected judge of the supreme court, re-elected in 1878, and again in 1886. After the last election he was made chief justice.

TOM CABANISS.

He Will Represent the Sixth Georgia District in Congress.

Thomas Cabaniss, known all over Georgia as Tom, was recently nominated for congress by the Democrats of the Sixth district.

Mr. Cabaniss served throughout the war on the Confederate side. He was elected to the house of representatives in October, 1865. He commenced the practice of law in 1870 at Forsyth, Ga. He was elected a member of the council and afterward mayor of Forsyth. In 1872 he was elected secretary of the Georgia senate, but resigned in January, 1873, upon being appointed solicitor general of the Flint circuit. He served as such until elected to the senate from the Twenty-second senatorial district in 1876. He was again elected from the same district to the senate of 1878-9. He was chairman of the finance committee.

Senator Cabaniss was elected to the senate from his district again in 1884, and was made chairman of the judiciary committee of that senate of 1884-5. In 1887 he was tendered by Mr. Blount the clerkship of the committee on postoffices and postroads of the house of representatives of the United States, and served as such during the Fiftieth congress.

A Ticklish Task.

No acrobat on a tight rope ever had a more ticklish task before him that have the champions of McKinleyism in balancing the paradoxes of protection.

Their chief organ in this city is busy in trying to prove—

First—That putting a tax on an article cheapens it to consumers.

Second—That cheapening the product enables the manufacturer to increase or to "maintain" wages.

Third—That the cost of food can be reduced to workingmen, while the farmer gets higher prices for his products on account of a tariff on foodstuffs, which constitute the main part of our exports.

Fourth—That the foreigners really pay the duty, though Mr. McKinley, in the kindness of his heart, taxes them only $180,000,000 a year toward the expenses of the government.

It is a very nice piece of tight rope balancing which the defenders of taxing a nation into prosperity have undertaken.—New York World.

It Will Be Ruin.

Such well known Republican leaders as Wolcott, Teller, Washburn, Platt, Fassett and Warner Miller openly charged during the progress of the convention that the true Republican sentiment of the country was being stifled by the federal officeholding regime which was bent on nominating Harrison even at the risk of disrupting the party. They succeeded in their rule or ruin purpose.—Lansing (Mich.) Journal.

Arkansas held an election for State officers, Monday. The People's party and republican party had formed alliance, and the republicans were looking forward to the defeat of the democratic ticket. The democratic majority in 1888 was 27,210. The latest returns indicate that the democratic majority on Monday will reach nearly 40,000. In 1888 the Counties of Jefferson, Desha, Chicot, Phillips and Pulaski gave a republican vote of 14,834 and a democratic vote of 6100. This year they all gave democratic majority. The voting was done under the Australian ballot system.

On Tuesday an election was held in Vermont for governor and state officers. The State gave a republican majority in 1888 of 28995. The returns this year indicate a republican majority of about 20,000 a falling of 9,000 since 1888. These are the two first chills for candidate Harrison.

Mr. Dougherty is Dead.

Daniel Dougherty, the distinguished orator and well known lawyer, died at his home, 2021 Spruce street, at a little before 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. His death was not unexpected, as he had been ill for nearly three months and his physician, Dr. D. F. Woods, told the family on Sunday night that his death was only a question of hours. The immediate cause of death was nervous prostration, to which was added trouble of the liver and stomach.

Mr. Dougherty's illness dated from June 20, at which time he came from Long Branch to attend to some business in this city. Not feeling well he visited his physician, who ordered him to bed immediately. At that time he was arranging for a trip to Europe, but this was postponed from week to week until it was finally abondoned six weeks ago, when he was compelled to remain in bed.

HIS NERVOUS SYSTEM GAVE WAY.

Three weeks ago his nervous trouble set in and it was preceded by a lesion at the base of the brain. This was succeeded by partial paralysis. Gradually the whole nervous system became affected and his left side was entirely paralyzed. At one stage of his illness about ten days ago, hiccoughs set in, but Dr. Woods succeeded in checking them in a day or two. Several times during the past week he has been either unconscious or delirious, but he has rallied.

No hope of a full recovery has been entertained for some time, and on Sunday the family was told to prepare for the worst. From that time his wife and five children were constantly at his bed side. Yesterday morning he became unconscious and died without pain.

THE NEW BALLOT LAW

DIRECTIONS TO VOTERS.

SECTION 22. Any person desiring to vote shall give his name and residence to one of the election officers in charge of the ballots, who shall thereupon announce the same in a loud and distinct tone of voice, and if such name is found upon the ballot check-list by the inspector or clerks in charge thereof, he shall likewise repeat the said name and the voter shall be allowed to enter the space enclosed by the guard-rail, unless his right to vote be challenged.

No person whose name is not on the said list, or whose right to vote shall be challenged by a qualified citizen, shall be admitted within said guard-rail until he has established his right to vote in the manner now provided by law, and his name, if not on the check-lists, shall then be added to both lists.

As soon as a voter is admitted within the rail the election officer having charge of the ballots shall detach a ballot from the stub and give it to the said voter, but shall first fold it so that the words printed on the back and outside, as provided in section fifteen of this act, shall be the only wording visible, and no ballot shall be voted unless folded in the same manner.

Not more than one ballot shall be given to a voter, except as provided in section twenty-six of this act. As soon as a voter receives a ballot, the "B" shall be marked against his name on the margin of the ballot-check-list, but no record of the number of the ballots shall be made on the said lists.

Besides the election officers and such supervisors as are authorized by the laws of the United States, or overseers appointed by the courts of this Commonwealth, not more than four voters in excess of the number of voting or compartments provided, shall be allowed in said enclosed space at one time.

SECTION 23. On receipt of his ballot, the voter shall, forthwith, and without leaving the space enclosed by the guard-rail, retire to one of the voting shelves or compartments, and shall prepare his ballot by marking in the appropriate margin or place a cross (x) opposite the party name or political designation of a group of candidates, or opposite the name of the candidate of his choice, for each office to be filled, or by inserting in the blank space provided therefor any name not already on the ballot, and in case of a question submitted to the vote of the people, by marking in the appropriate margin or place a cross (x) against the answer which he desires to give.

Before leaving the voting shelf or compartment, the voter shall fold his ballot without displaying the marks thereon in the same way it was folded when received by him, and he shall keep the same so folded until he has voted.

After leaving the voting shelf and before leaving the enclosed space he shall give his ballot to the election officer in charge of the ballot box, who shall, without unfolding the ballot, number it as required by the Constitution of this Commonwealth, placing the said number in the right hand upper corner of the back of the ballot, immediately to the left of the folding line printed thereon, and nowhere else, and shall then at once fold the corner at the folding line and fasten it securely down with the adhesive paste, so as to cover the number on the ballot, so that it cannot be seen without unfastening or cutting open the part so fastened down, and shall then deposit the ballot in the box.

The voter shall mark and deliver his ballot without undue delay, and shall quit the enclosed space as soon as his ballot has been deposited.

SECTION 24. No voter shall be allowed to occupy a voting shelf or compartment already occupied by another, except when giving the help allowed by section twenty-seven of this act, nor to remain within said compartment more than three minutes in case all of such compartments are in use and other voters are waiting to occupy the same.

No voter not an election officer shall be allowed to re-enter the enclosed space after he has once left it, except to give help as hereinafter described.

Each voter's name shall (not) be checked on the voting check-list by the officer having charge thereof as soon as he has cast his vote, in the manner now provided by law.

It shall be the duty of the judge of election to secure the observance of the provisions of this section, to keep order in the room in which the voting is held, and to see that no more persons are admitted within the enclosed space than are allowed by this act.

Each party which has, by its primary meeting, caucus, convention or board, sent to the proper officer a certificate of nomination, are allowed to appoint three electors to act as watchers at each voting place, without expense to the county, one of whom shall be allowed to remain in the room outside of the enclosed space

Each watcher shall be provided with a certificate from the county commissioners, or if the election be held in a township or borough, from the auditors of the same, stating his name, names of the persons who have appointed him and the party or policy he represents, and no party or policy shall be represented by more than one watcher in the same voting room at any one time. Watchers shall be required to show their certificates when requested to do so.

Until the polls are closed no person shall be allowed in the room outside of the said enclosed space, except these watchers, voters not exceeding ten at any one time, who are awaiting their turn to prepare their ballots, and peace officers when necessary for the preservation of the peace.

No person, when within the voting room, shall electioneer or solicit votes for any party or candidate, nor shall any written or printed matter be posted up within the said room, except as required by law.

SECTION 25. No list or memorandum of the names of voters, except such lists as are expressly authorized by law, shall be made within the voting room by any person or officer, nor shall any list or memorandum of the numbers marked upon the ballots be made or kept, except such lists as are expressly authorized by law; Provided, That any voter may make a memorandum of the number of his own ballot, and the watchers may keep their poll books and challenge lists.

After the closing of the polls and before the ballot boxes are opened all the lists of voters upon which the numbers of the ballots are recorded, as now required by law, shall be placed in separate sealed covers, properly marked, and the stubs of all the ballots used, together with all unused ballots, and the ballot-check-list, shall also be enclosed in a sealed package properly designating the voting place which package shall be sent to the proper officer as required by law in the case of the ballots cast, and neither the said package nor the said lists of voters shall thereafter be opened, except by the return judges, or in the case of a contest, or upon the order of a court of a competent jurisdiction.

SECTION. 26. No person other than the election officers, shall take or remove any ballot from the voting place. If any voter inadvertantly spoils a ballot he may obtain another upon returning the spoiled one. The ballots thus returned shall be immediately cancelled, and at the close of the polls shall be secured in an envelope sealed and sent to the proper officer as required by law in the case of the ballots cast.

SECTION 27. If any voter declares to the judge of election that, by reason of disability, he desires assistance in the preparation of his ballot, he shall be permitted by the judge of election to select a qualified voter of the election district to aid him in the preparation of his ballot, such preparation being made in the voting department.

SECTION 28. If a voter marks more names than there are persons to be elected to an office, or if for any reason it is impossible to determine the voter's choice for any office to be filled, his ballot shall not be counted for such office. No ballot without the official endorsement shall, except as herein otherwise provided, be allowed to be deposited in the ballot box, and none but ballots provided in accordance with the provisions of this act shall be counted.

Ballots not marked, or improperly or defectively marked, shall be endorsed as defective, but shall be preserved with the other ballots. If any ballot appears to have been obtained otherwise than as provided in this act, the judge of elections shall transmit such ballot to the district attorney without delay, together with whatever information he may have tending to the detection of the person who deposited the same.

Necessity of Governmental Reform.

From Harper's weekly.

REFORM in our national government is essentially one impulse, one principle, one policy. Demoralizing and iniquitous taxation is intimately associated with all other demoralizing and iniquitous methods of legislation and administration. Thoughtful students of history will see the connection between our vicious tariff system and that extension of "bossism which makes a complete reform of the civil service more essential than ever. They see that the waste and corruption of our pension are largely a result of the same cause. They see that the schemes by which ignorance, fanaticism, and avarice are conspiring to degrade the currency owe most of their dangerous strength to the law which have trained men to seek wealth in legislation rather than in industry. The revolt of 1890 against the McKinley tariff was the first expression of an outraged people against a great wrong, and the passion which inspired it seems for the time to be exhausted in the effort But there is deeper meaning in the widespread growth of an intelligent sentiment of reform, in the profound conviction that public office is a public trust, and that its powers must be exercised only for the people's good. It is the rapid growth of this sentiment demanding a single eye to the nation's welfare in every appointment to office, in every enactment of tax, in every expenditure of the people's money, that is the significant feature of American political life. With the call for tariff reform as the type of its demands, as the first and immediate practical end to be reached by success in this election, independents unite with the young Democracy and proclaim their purpose to apply this principle everywhere.

THE independents accept Grover Cleveland, the candidate of the Democratic party, as, on the whole, the foremost representative of the reform principle, and will give him a cordial support. Not pretending to approve the views or to tolerate the methods of many who call themselves Democrats, with no sympathy for party bosses or organizations which subordinate principle to momentary success, they still rejoice that within this reinvigorated party the power of all such element has yileded to the demand for broad statesmanship and far-sighted policy. They believe that the force of truth will consolidate the discordant fragments which form the party, or that if it repel some of these, it will attract better and stronger support from without, and that the way is open to-day, as it has not been in many years, for an educational canvass in the cause of reform, with strong prospect of an immediate success, which shall be an important service to the nation, and with the certainty that the final triumph of that cause in the civil administration of the government at large, as well as in the laws of taxation and currency, cannot long be delayed.

H. E. Davis, a coal merchant of Sunburry was unanimously nominated by the democrats, on Tuesday Septembe. 6th, to be a candidate for Senator in the twenty fourth Senatorial district. This is the district where the republicans had so much trouble in nominating a candidate, after taking 214 ballots. The district is republican by about 1200. It will be a close fight and require some boodle to carry it.

This Isn't on the Farmers.

A sharper is working the undertakers of the state. With tearful eyes he goes to the undertaker and orders a coffin for his beloved wife who has just died of heart disease in an adjoining town. He tenders a check in payment drawn for several dollars more than the bill and the obliging undertaker, who is overjoyed to get his pay in advance, gives him the difference in cash. A Wilkesbarre undertaker took a coffin to Bear Creek before he found that he was swindled.

This Nation as a Road Builder.

From the Altona Tribune.

The gospel of good roads is being preached with a fervency and a tenacity that is certain to bring the answer sooner or later. The day is coming when a road which is morass half the year and a dust heap the other half will be as discreditable to a township as mud holes are to a city that wants to be well thought of. The farmer, who now looks with suspicion upon the agitation for improved roads, is going to put on his thinking cap and the result will be his conversion to a better state of mind. The State will take the matter up, the National Government will lend a hand. It will be determined that a government which annually appropriates many millions for the improvement of rivers and hobers, will be doing wisely by aiding in the construction of decent roads. The States will interfere to some extent with the business of the wagon-maker, and in course of time vehicles will have tires that will make roads instead of destroying them. When the State or National Government has constructed a number of main roads the township or the county will put the less important ones in order. The contrast between improved and unimproved highways will be so great that public sentiment will demand the completion of the work. Afterwards our rural friends will be amazed at the patience with which they submitted to the inconvenience and expense of poor roads, roads that for months are almost impassable.

The State Central Committee met at Harrisburg, Tuesday and selected John Conway of Rochester, Beaver county as presidential elector, in place of James A. Mellon who moved out of the state.

In view of what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others, is it not reasonable to suppose that it will be of benefit to you? Saved —the life that is fighting against Consumption.

Only—act promptly.

Put it off, and nothing can save you. But, if taken in time, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will certainly cure.

It must be done through the blood—and the "Discovery" is the most potent blood-cleanser, strength-restorer, and flesh-builder that's known to medical science. The scrofulous affection of the lungs that's called Consumption, and every form of Scrofula and blood-taints, all yield to it. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Bronchitis, Asthma, and all severe, lingering Coughs, it's an unequaled remedy. It's the only one that's guaranteed. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, you have your money back.

"We promise to cure your Catarrh, perfectly and permanently, no matter how bad your case or of how long standing—or we'll pay you $500." That's what the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy say to every sufferer from Catarrh. And they mean it.

PURE OLD RYE AND WHEAT WHISKEY.

We formerly had bonded warehouse room sufficient to store 8,000 gallons of whiskey, which we considered a stock sufficient to meet our trade, but we found however, the demand for our whiskey such, that for us to be able to get a larger stock of old whiskey, we were compelled to increase our storage room and have just completed an Ironclad bonded warehouse with a capacity sufficient to store 30,000 gallons of whiskey.

We aim to sell no whiskey less than one year old and from that on up to the oldest we have in stock except in original packages, thereby giving our patrons the benefit of the age.

What we claim over a great many other distillers:

FIRST, Briarcreek being a rich fertile valley, we are able to get a superior quality of grain to manufacture our whiskey from.

SECOND: Having our flouring mill in connection with our distillery we clean all our grain for distillation over a rigid process of the smutter, thereby, making it as clean as the grain that is ground into flour.

THIRD: We hand mash, double distill our whiskey and then re-distill on a copper distill.

FOURTH: We leach our whiskey well thereby getting out the fusil oil and all impurities, which new whiskey contains.

FIFTH: We use no second-handed barrels, our whiskey is all put in new, clean, Indiana White Oak barrels which is considered the best barrel in the market.

SIXTH: It is a known fact that the hotter whiskey is kept the faster it will age, therefore, we heat our bonded ware-house with steam so the thermometer will register 70 degrees, when the temperature is at zero.

We have never distilled any corn, and do hereby guarantee all our whiskey positively pure rye or wheat and for purity and quality we defy competition, and to any person who will find any poisonous drug in our whiskey, put in by us, as it leaves our distillery or sales-room we will forfeit $600.00.

The total vote cast in 1884 was 6787, with a democratic majority of 1911. The total vote in 1888 was 7160, and a democratic majority of 2192. The present year we find a registration of 8777—an increase of 1652 over four years ago. If the democratic Committeemen, together with the members of the vigilance Committee, will make special efforts to get out the vote our democratic majority will be over 2700. In addition to the registered voters there are always a large number of 60 day voters, which will probably swell the number to over 9,000, in that event we can look for 3,000 majority. We must remember that under the new ballot law there will be an extra amount of labor required in getting the vote. We have a few townships that poll nearly 500 votes; here there must be an average of 45 votes polled every hour. Each voter may be allowed three minutes in the preparation of his ballot, but since the provisions for polling the vote allow 10 to 12 voting booths for the large townships, all the votes can be polled if a little educational work is commenced at once. It is not expected that all will be made familiar with the voting before election day, but an effort ought to be made to familiarize at least one-half. Mock elections should be held in as many townships as possible, and the democratic election officers should act as the officers in the mock elections, in order to get a thorough knowledge of all the knotty points in the law. It is eight weeks until election day, but the time will pass rapidly. Systematic work should be commenced at once to get out the whole democratic vote, and the election of Cleveland and Stevenson will be assured and an era of prosperity follow. Get out the vote and you have done your part.

World's Fair Notes.

Governor Pifer of Illinois, has detailed Colonel Charles P. Bryan of his staff to assist in receiving officers of state and foreign troops at the dedication of the World's Fair buildings in October. The appointment was made at the request of the joint committee on dedicatory ceremonies.

From the applications already on file it is estimated that more than 100,000 men will participate in the great civic parade at the time of the dedication of the World's Fair buildings in October.

A gold brick worth $230,000 will be exhibited at the world's Fair by Montana.

Seats will be provided at the World's Fair dedicatory ceremonies in October for 1,500 newspaper correspondents, it having been estimated that about that number will be present.

Prof. Elisha Gray, the celebrated electrician, has returned from an extensive European tour taken in the interest of the electrical congress which will be held in Chicago in connection with the World's Fair. He secured the promise of 200 electricians to attend the congress.

Sacramento, Cal., will make at the World's Fair an exhibit illustrating its postal service from the days of '49 to the present time.

The Home Insurance Company, of 118 Broadway, New York, has subscribed $2,500 to the capital stock of the World's Columbian Exposition company, and has promised to subscribe $2,500 more.

Plans for the World's Fair passenger station at Jackson Park call for a main station 150x300 feet, with an annexed trainshed 100x672 feet. Provision is made for loading and unloading thirty-six trains at one time on reserved tracks.

An offer of $120,000 in cash has been made for the exclusive privilege of selling peanuts at the World's Fair.

Applications for space in the Electricity building at the World's Fair aggregate 388,000 square feet, while only 185,000 feet are available. Foreign nations have already been assigned 68,000 feet, and several of them are urgently asking for more.

The International Peace Congress, at its recent session in Berne, Switzerland, decided unanimously to hold its next meeting in Chicago at the time of the World's Fair.

A company has been incorporated with $100,000 capital stock for the purpose of erecting near the World's Fair a $75,000 club-house, which shall be maintained during the Fair as headquarters for wheelmen from all parts of the world, Thereafter the building will become a central club house for the League of American Wheelmen. The project is approved by members of the National Association and by the Council of the Illinois branch.

On each side of the MacMonies mammoth memorial fountain in front of the Administration building at the World's Fair will be a hugh electrical fountain which will throw a stream 150 feet high, brilliantly illumina ed by variously colored electric lights.

Fac-similes of thirty seven of the most prominent of the Aztec idols in the museum in the City of Mexico have been prepared for the World's Fair at Chicago.

The Japanese government has arranged to send to this country 2,000 Japanese of the middle class, who are to be here during the World's Fair and afterward make a tour of the principal cities of the United States. Instruction and information as to the industries and customs of the American people constitute the object desired to be attained.

The Kansas State Normal School, which has 1,500 pupils, and is the largest in the West, will make an exhibit at the World's Fair.

The nitrate industry of Chile will be illustrated by an elaborate exhibit at the World's Fair.

A false statement is going the rounds of the press to the effect that visitors will not be able to get any drinking water at the World's Fair without paying for it. There will be an abundance of excellent water free to all who want it. Those who wish to drink mineral spring water, piped to the Exposition grounds from Waukesha, Wis., a hundred miles distance, will have to pay one cent a glass for it. The free water will be that of Lake Michigan, brought by tunnel from a point four miles from shore, and much better than the inhabitants of most large cities are supplied with.

The Austrian wood carving industry will be specially represented at the Chicago Exposition by thirty-four expert wood carvers from Vienna, who will exhibit their work in its various branches. Everything is being done to organize a thoroughly representative and interesting collection of exhibits.

Germany's building at the World's Fair will cost about $125,000, and will be a combination of typical styles of German architecture, such as are seen in perfection in Nuremburg. It will be massive in construction, the first story being of great blocks of sandstone and the second of a combination of brick and cement. At one end will be erected a Gothic cathedral, the windows of which will show exceedingly artistic effects, being the work of several of the most famous designers in Germany. The interior of the building will be finished throughout with natural woods unpainted. Much of the building material has already been received from Germany, and the construction of the edifice is in progress.

The World's Fair souvenir coins, some of them, it is now expected, will be issued in November, probably by the middle of the month. The Exposition authorities have offered quantities of them to banks throughout the country at the uniform rate of one dollar each, and it is believed that those institutions will be prompt to avail themselves of the opportunity to get a supply for their customers. Orders for them are already being sent in at the rate of $5,000 to $10,000 a day.

Since 1864 Illinois women have taken out 284 patents for inventions and devices of one kind and another. The Illinois World's Fair board will exhibit copies of all of these patents, and models of all of the inventions that can be obtained.

The Winnebago County, Ill., Woman's Columbian Club, for a time contemplated making an exhibit at the World's Fair, but has now decided instead to raise sufficient money to send to the Fair for eight days 156 working women and pay all expenses. It is believed that many other women's clubs will follow their very commendable example.

Allow me to add my tribute to the efficacy of Ely's Cream Balm. I was suffering from a severe attack of influenza and catarrh and was induced to try your remedy. The result was marvelous. I could hardly articulate, and in less than twenty-four hours the catarrhal symptoms and my hoarseness disappeared and I was able to sing a heavy role in Grand Opera with voice unimpaired. I strongly recommend it to all singers.—Wm H. Hamilton, Leading Basso of the C. D. Hess Grand Opera Co. 9-2-2t

WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5, 1892.

Using the Executive Departments of the government to obtain republican campaign material has been one of the specialties of the G. O. P. ever since it controlled a national administration. Whenever it has been possible to do so this sort of work has been done under authority of a Senate or House resolution, but the absence of any such authority has not prevented its being done during every national campaign. There is scarcely a single department of the government in which a lager number of employees of the highest are not engaged upon work which would never have been considered necessary if the managers of the republican campaign had not ordered that it be done.

Senator Sherman is an adept in this sort of thing, and his resolution, which was adopted during the closing hours of the last session of Congress, calling upon the Secretary of the Treasury for certain information concerning banks, State and National, since 1830, was for the two fold purpose of getting the republican party the strong support of the National banks and for obtaining statistics which might be used as an argument against the plank in the democratic national platform favoring the repeal of the prohibitory tax on the circulating notes of State banks. Under this resolution all of the official machinery of the United States Treasury has been put to work for the republican pa ty. In sending circulars to the National banks requesting—demanding would be nearer the truth—them to assist in gathering these statisties comptroller Hepburn felt that some reason ought to be given for such an unusual proceeding, so the following note was inclosed with each circular: "While it is admitted that calls of this character create unusual demands upon bankers and their clerical force, still the value of the results secured will, unquestionably be recognized and, therefore, the willing co-operation of all national bank officers is confidently anticipated" (the underscoring is mine.)

In addition to the circular to National banks several thoroughly posted officials including Henry H. Smith, assistant Register of the Treasury, have been ordered to personally visit the National banks in the Eastern States where the information is mostly to be used, in order that there shall be no mistake concerning the precise information wanted. Besides all that, a large force of expert clerks are at work searching the old record of the Internal Revenue Bureau, hoping to find something detrimental to State banks, which may be used in the campaign. Meanwhile the legitimate work of all these officials remains undone and they draw their pay for hunting up republican campaign material, pay which democratic tax-payers have to contribute their share of.

Superstitious democrats are very much pleased because the first sloop to arrive at the Capitol this season, with a car load of oysters, was the Grover Cleveland; they regard it as an omen favorable to the election of Cleveland and Stevenson.

According to the latest edict of fashion from Paris and London the robe de nuit, or, to call it by its plain English name, the nightgown, has got to go. Its place is to be taken by pyjamas, those nondescript garmets consisting of very loose trousers and jackets, the use of which at night has hitherto been restricted to the masculine sex The new pyjamas for feminine wear are very dainty and beautiful contrivances, trimmed with lots of ribbons and laces. Far from diminishing the attractiveness of a pretty woman, they vastly increase it by endowing her with an air of gaminerie which is exceedingly fetching. Pyjamas should be made of the thinnest finest wool. Here in the United States, especially where tropical heat is generally followed by sudden cold waves, wool next to the skin is essential for preventing chills. Moreover, they possess the inestimable advantage of being not only warm in cold weather, but of keeping the body cool when the atmosphere is hot.

Believed in Some Signs.

From the Chicago Tribune.

It was the witching hour of night. Light, fleecy clouds scurried across the face of the moon, the wind moaned dreary through the chimney tops, the street lamps, in all the glory of their one-and-a-half candle-power, threw their majestic radiance over the scene, and the man who was sitting on the curbstone shivered slightly as he saw a meteor flash across the heavens and disappear.

"Shykes," he said "do you believe in signs?"

"I believe in some signs, Glizzard," answered the man who was leaning unsteadily against a lamp-post. "F'rinstance, if I see a bright light in my wife's room when I get home it's a sign she's waiting for me and I'm going to catch it. That's a sign, Glizzard," he added, shaking his head gloomily, "that I've never known to fail."

TARIFF IN PICTURES.

ILLUSTRATIONS SHOWING WHO PAYS THE INIQUITOUS TAX.

An Easy Lesson on the One Sided Operation of the Republicans' Pet Hobby—The Conclusions of a Sensible Old Farmer Who Did His Own Thinking.

For many years the farmers of America have been dimly conscious that there was something wrong in our economic system. They knew that their profits were growing less every year, but they could not tell what was the matter. They bent themselves to their toil with renewed energy. They tried the eight hour system—that is, eight hours in the forenoon and eight hours in the afternoon. But it was no good. The profits grew still less and less. Finally one old gray haired fellow sat down and went to thinking, and this is what he thought:

"I have worked hard all my life. I have raised thousands of bushels of wheat and corn, of oats and rye, of potatoes, apples and beans, and hundreds of head of horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, chickens, ducks and geese, and my family has consumed but a very small part of them. What became of the remainder? I have given away a little to the church and charity, but it was very little; I wish it had been more. But what has become of the rest? I know we never ate a hundredth part of the wheat, corn and oats, or of the beef and pork, or wore out in clothes a tenth of the wool. Where did it all go to? Who got it?"

Then he thought and thought, and at last he said:

"I know where part of it went. I paid some of it out for taxes. I wonder how much?"

Then he went to the cupboard and from a drawer he took out a bundle of papers, some of them yellow with age.

They were his tax receipts. He hunted up an old stump of a pencil and called his daughter Mary, who had been going to the district school, and said to her:

"I want to call off these figures, and you set 'em down and add 'em up. I want to see what they all come to."

He had his tax receipts for two years, and when Mary had added them up and "proved" the sum, as she had been taught in school, and she was sure she was right, she said that the sum of all the figures amounted to $140.57. But the old man shook his head and said:

"It don't account for it all; it don't account for it all."

"Don't account for what, papa?" asked Mary.

"Why, all the cotton and wheat and corn and pork and wool and beans and garden stuff and other things I have raised."

"Didn't we eat it?"

"Why, bless you, child, we could not have eaten one-thousandth part of it."

"Did anybody steal it?"

"Now, child, you ought to be ashamed of yourself. You know all our neighbors are honest. No one ever stole a cent from me." (Right here the old farmer was wrong.)

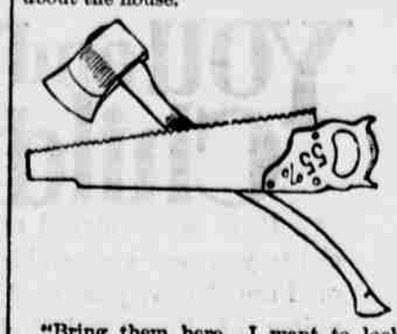
The old man worried about what had become of his crops. The more he thought about it the more he felt sure he had not consumed them. One day he said to his wife:

"Mother, do you know where the tax receipts are?"

"In the cupboard drawer."

"Are you sure that they are there?"

"I am sure. There is not another one about the house."



"Bring them here. I want to look over them."

The good old wife brought them. He spread them out on the table and looked them over. They were all there, for every year, for twenty years. Still the old man worried and wondered about what had become of his crops. At last he said:

"Mother, how much do you suppose we have given to the preacher for the missionaries and such things?"

"We have never paid him," she replied, "but five times, and we have given him in all about fifty or sixty dollars, and I have kept an account of what we have donated to the church. I will see."

In a few moments the old lady returned and said:

"We have paid to the church, the missionary societies and things like that $287.50. It isn't much more than ten dollars a year. Do you think it is too much?"

"No, no, mother," he replied; "it is little enough, the Lord knows. But it don't account for it. It don't account for it."

"Don't account for what?" asked mother. "What in the world are you talking about?"

"Why, all the wheat and corn, beef and pork, horses and cattle, sheep and hogs, chickens and turkeys, and everything else I have raised on this farm. I would like to know who got it."

"The storekeeper got some," meekly remarked the wife.

"I wish I knew how much," said the old man.

The good wife furnished him the figures. They were $950.

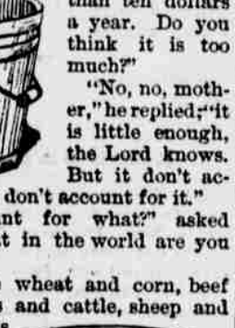
Still the old man was not satisfied. It did not account for it, he said. He was gathering up his receipts when mother asked him what kind of taxes those receipts had been given for.

"State and county taxes," he said.

"Where are the receipts for the general government taxes?" she asked.

"I never had to pay any government taxes," he said. But a moment afterward he dropped the receipts and sat down in a chair and thought for awhile. At last he said:

"I don't ever remember having paid any government taxes. I must have forgotten it, but I can't for the life of me remember anything about it. I suppose I must, mother. Did you ever see any government tax receipts about the house?"



"What do they look like?"

"I don't know, but I must have paid some government taxes, and if I did I would take a receipt. But I can't remember anything about it."

A knock was heard at the door, and a neighbor came in.

"I am awful glad you came," said the old man. "I want to ask you about the government taxes. I can't remember about paying them, but I must have done so, I know. When do we pay them?"

"Every day and every hour from the cradle to the grave, and they levy them on us after we are dead, and if we don't leave any money behind us our friends pay them for us."

"How is that?" the old man asked.

"The government puts a tariff on every article the farmer buys, and when he buys the article a part of the price he pays is the tax the government has levied upon it. As soon as the farmer is born the government begins to tax him. If the baby has the colic and his mother gives him a dose of paregoric the government taxes it 40 per cent., and it never lets up on the taxing afterward while there is a cent in his pocket. Most farmers and workingmen wear flannel shirts for a large part of the year.

"At 5 o'clock he gets out of bed and puts on a flannel shirt that is taxed 100 per cent. This costly garment, for which he paid twice what it could have been sold for at a fair profit, having been buttoned up with buttons taxed 150 per cent., he proceeds to put on a pair of trousers. They are made of coarse, heavy cloth, and the tax is made correspondingly heavy, so they cost him 100 per cent. more than they otherwise would. He straps them over his shoulders with suspenders taxed 65 per cent. and proceeds to put his feet into a pair of socks taxed 120 per cent.

"He wears coarse, heavy socks, and he must pay about four times the tax the rich man does for elegant, thin light ones. He then thrusts his feet into a pair of coarse cowhide shoes, which have been taxed 25 per cent., after which he puts on a coat taxed 95 per cent. He wakes up his wife and goes out into the kitchen and starts a fire with coal taxed seventy-five cents on a ton, and the smoke goes up a brick chimney taxed 45 per cent.

"Then he goes to give hay to the cattle with a fork taxed 45 per cent. in a rack taxed 40 per cent., and feeds them salt taxed 44 per cent. out of a barrel taxed 40 per cent.

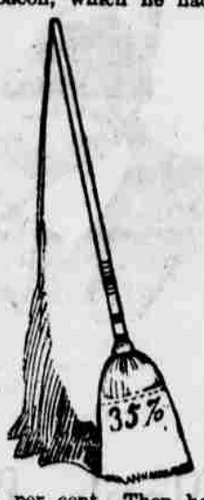
"After giving slop to his pigs out of a barrel bound with iron hoops taxed 35 per cent., he goes into the stable, taxed 40 per cent., to feed his horses out of troughs taxed 40 per cent.

"Meanwhile his good wife has arisen and cooked his bacon, which he had cured with salt taxed 44 per cent. (no rebate) on a stove taxed 45 per cent. The old farmer came to the house, and taking a pail taxed 20 per cent. went to fetch a pail of water (not taxed yet), which he got from a pump taxed 35 per cent. He closed the door taxed 20 per cent., which was hung on hinges taxed 35 per cent. and was held fast by a lock taxed 45 per cent. Then he washed his hands in a tin basin taxed 53 per cent., with soap taxed 20 per cent., and wiped them on a brown linen towel taxed 35 per cent. He went into the dining room covered with an oil-cloth carpet taxed 40 per cent., and sat down in a chair taxed 35 per cent. His wife pulled out a table taxed 20 per cent. and spread upon it a tablecloth taxed 40 per cent. She put on it some earthenware taxed 40 per cent. and white plates taxed 50 per cent. The knives and forks were also taxed 50 per cent. The glass tumblers out of which they drank milk were taxed 180 per cent., and the roof under which they sat was taxed 20 per cent.



"The good wife poured coffee out of a coffeepot taxed 55 per cent., and stirred it up with a spoon taxed 45 per cent. The bill of fare was not elaborate. It consisted of coffee taken out of a can taxed 55 per cent., bacon cured with salt taxed 44 per cent., bread made of flour taken from a bag taxed 35 per cent., and the butter seasoned with taxed salt. After breakfast the farmer put on a hat taxed 55 per cent., walked over a taxed carpet which covered a taxed floor, out of a taxed door hung on taxed hinges and fastened with a taxed lock, into God's air, not taxed yet. He then got some wire nails taxed 150 per cent., and taking a hammer taxed 50 per cent. and a saw and ax taxed 55 per cent. he repaired a pigpen with lumber taxed 30 per cent.

"After he had finished that job he went into the stable and put a bridle and harness onto his horses, taxed 35 per cent., led them out from the taxed stable to a

A Woman's Back.

It is the mainspring of her life.

What can she do, where can she go, so long as that deadly backache saps every particle of her strength and ambition?

She cannot walk, she cannot stand; her housework is a burden; the hours behind the counter or in the factory are crushing; she is miserable.

The cause is some derangement of the uterus or womb. The backache is the sure symptom.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the one unfailing remedy. A woman discovered it and gave it to women. A woman reads your letter and gives you a woman's sympathy and help. Thousands send letters grateful for physical salvation. The same salvation is for you. Don't hesitate.

All druggists sell it, or sent by mail, in form of Pills or Lozenges, on receipt of $1. Correspondence freely answered. Address in confidence, LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICAL CO., LYNN, MASS. Liver Pills, 25c.

is a family affair—a requisite of the home. A 25 cent package makes 5 gallons of a delicious, strengthening, effervescent beverage.

SOME CAMPAIGN SONGS.

Efforts of the Poets in the New York World's Competition.

[Air—"Hail, Columbia!"]

Rise, ye patriots, Freedom stirs!
Rise, ye are her worshippers,
Who live and die to save your rights,
Who live and die to save your rights,
For now our country's voice we hear,
That wakes to thrill her lover's ear.
Forget can we the victories won,
Patriot sire and patriot son,
Sages of immortal birth,
Bringing glory to the earth!

CHORUS.

Hear the tocsin and array—
Lest we have tyrannic sway—
As a mighty phalanx bold,
For our Union's years untold.

Guard we the people's happiness!
Relieve would we the poor's distress!
Turn no one can from such a cry,
Turn no one can from such a cry,
No autocrat can us enslave
While we are pure, and true, and brave.
And shield would we the helpless now,
Twine honors around the freeman's brow,
That joy and plenty may abound,
And men—as men—alike be crowned.

Strike, strike for liberty a blow!
Fear have ye not to meet the foe!
Ours is the land of Washington,
Ours is the land of Washington,
Whose flag shall never trail in dust.
To this we look, in heaven we trust.
Life's dearest trusts we must defend,
No force bill shall our standard rend,
Or tariff give for wrong a cause;
Let us have just and equal laws.

See there the chiefs who will us guide!
Our hopes we may in them confide,
Shout Cleveland and our Stevenson,
Shout Cleveland and our Stevenson,
From lake to gulf, from sea to sea,
And vote the ballots of the free.
When weak men grow and poorly rule,
Or are corruption's pliant tool,
The oath is ours, they shall remove,
For our Columbia 'tis we love.

Hurrah, Hurrah, Democracy!

In serried ranks, with martial tread,
We come in panoply of right;
No war to wage with issues dead,
But living wrongs to fearless smite;
And high our hearts with fervor swell
As millions 'neath our flag unite
To ring the old protection's knell,
And labor's hosts conduct to light.

CHORUS.

Then peal our slogan to the sky:
Cleveland, Cleveland, our rallying cry.
Hurrah, Hurrah, Democracy!
Cleveland, reform and victory!

'Tis ours for rights of man to stand,
Which pampered pride would keep in pay
And mock the ballot's stern command
With lawless threat of bayonet sway;
And never shall our flag be furled,
And never shall our zeal decay
Till freedom's foes from place are hurled
And, spurned, the people's voice obey.

Arise, ye Democrats, arise!
Be worthy of your glorious name!
Advance and grasp a nation's prize,
And own your heritage of fame.
Into your hands is given now
The common people's sacred cause;
To wage their fight with fearless brow,
Their mandates pen in equal laws.

Grover in Novembee.

[Air—"The Girl I Left Behind Me."]

O Ben, do you know to the polls we'll go
For Grover in November?
O Ben, do you know you will have no show
With Grover in November?

CHORUS.

No G. O. P. nor tariff high;
That force bill we remember.
No tin McKin can ever win
With Grover in Novembee.

O Ben, do you known that the cock will crow
For Grover in November?
O Ben, do you know you are all too slow
For Grover in November?

O Ben do you know we are all in tow
For Grover in November?
So, Ben, here's a go; let the good cheer flow
For Grover in Novembee.

Protection That Hurts.

The Pacific coast is writhing over the prospective effect of the action of the government of Victoria, Australia, increasing the import duty on Oregon pine to $9.25 per 1,000 feet and the duty on canned fruit to six cents per pound, or about fifteen cents per can. This is in retaliation against the McKinley bill. The blow is particularly severe to fruit growers and canners who have been for years engaged in building up a market in Australia for California canned goods. —Wilmington (Del.) Every Evening.

Stevenson's Popularity.

The popularity of the Democratic nominee for vice president with those who know him has rarely been equaled and never exceeded in this country. Governor Proctor Knott explains it to some extent in a letter in which he says, "The conservatism of Mr. Stevenson is not only pleasant and innocently cheerful, but carries with it a certain indescribable charm which renders him the very soul and center of every social circle in which he may be thrown."—Houston Post.

West Virginia's Next Governor.

The recent Democratic state convention in West Virginia, which selected the next governor of the state in the person of William A. McCorkle, was the largest ever held in the "younger Virginia." It is morally certain that Mr. McCorkle will be elected, and this fact adds to the credit due the delegates for their discrimination in the selection of a candidate. Mr. McCorkle is a very young ... His father lost his life during ... war. William obtained an education through his own efforts, became a lawyer and has risen rapidly in his state. If his friends are not mistaken he will pile up the largest Democratic majority that West Virginia has had in many years.

WILLIAM A. M'CORKLE.

Growing More Liberal

That's what the human race is doing—particularly the American part of it.

There are a few left who are satisfied with ancient history. But most people are ready to apply modern progress and common-sense to the treatment of the human stomach—an organ that demands its rights whether or no; that resents the insults of worn-out methods. All this is to emphasize the facts about

COTTOLENE

There was once a prejudice against Cottonseed oil. But people who are alive, who investigate, who have no bigotry in their composition, have found that pure, refined cottonseed oil combined with selected beef suet is a better article in every conceivable way than hog's lard. And so they wisely use it for cooking—and are correspondingly healthy and happy. The sales of COTTOLENE are enormous and constantly increasing; a proof that it is appreciated by appreciative persons.

Continuous Track of Steel to Boston.

THE READING'S POUGHKEEPSIE BRIDGE ROUTE.

No longer do travelers between this section of the country and New England have to undergo the discomforts of street transfer through the city of New York. This has all been obviated, and the Reading Railroad with its continuous line of steel rail now carries its passengers in trains, vestibuled from end to end, from Philadelphia to Boston without a single change of cars. This new route, which is via the great Poughkeepsie Bridge, has many attractions, and is rapidly becoming very popular. The accommodations are first-class in every respect; the trains are vestibuled from end to end and are scheduled on fast express time; the roadway is perfect, making the ride pleasant and comfortable; the country traversed abounds in grand and picturesque scenery and the coaches are very models of the car builders art. There are both day and night trains run in each direction, the day trains being vestibuled and having Pullman Buffet Parlor cars attached, and the night trains have Pullman Buffet Sleeping Cars. The east bound trains are the New England Day Express, which leaves Philadelphia 9th and Green Sts. on weekdays only at 10.00 A. M., and the New England Night Express which leaves 9th and Green Sts. at 6.45 P. M. and 24 and Chestnut Sts. at 6.20 P. M. daily, Sundays included. The westbound trains are the Quaker City Day Express which leaves Boston, (N. Y. & N. E. R. R. Summer St. depot), on weekdays only, at 9.30 A. M., and the Quaker City Night Express, which leaves Boston, (B. & M. R. R. Causeway St. depot) at 5.45 P. M. dayly, Sundays included.

COULD SAY EVERYTHING.

THE BALD-HEADED MAN GOT AS MUCH BABY TALK AS HE COULD STAND.

From the Detroit Tribune.

The birds sang blithely; a gentle refreshing breeze blayed with the green foliage; a sky of undefiled azure bent over a rejoicing world; but the young woman in the first-class coach was indifferent to all else save the ill-favored baby in her arms. Upon the infant she was showering admiration in lavish quantities. The train had proceeded about fifty miles when she found herself constrained to share ecstasy with the tall, bald-headed man just across the aisle.

"What," she rapturously demanded, gazing at the baby, "could be sweeter?"

The bald-headed man smiled in a sickly way. Several sweeter things than a baby seemed to occur to his mind, but he mentioned none.

"Nothing.

The young woman was replying to herself, radiant with maternal love.

"Nossing, no nossing wuz sweeter."

She had buried her face in the raiment of the ill-favored infant to whom she was iterating her positive declaration. The bald-headed man felt it his duty to say something.

"Does—er—ah—your baby talk?"

"Talk?"

The young woman appeared to be astonished that there should be any doubt about it.

"Why that child," she enthusiastically insisted, "can say everything."

With a triumphant smile at the tall, bald headed man the young proceeded to illustrate.

"Say mammy, tootsey."

The ill-favored baby stared vacantly.

"He's trying to remember," she proudly explained.

The illfavored baby dug its fist into its mouth.

"Say mamma tootsey."

"Goo," gurgled the infant.

The young woman clasped her hands in delight.

"Did you ever hear anything so distinct?" she eagerly asked.

The bald-headed man refrained from committing himself.

"Say papa, tootsey."

Flushed with success the young woman was proceeding another step in the demonstration of the contention that the baby could say anything.

"Say papa, tootsey."

The baby emitted a nondescript grunt.

"Did you ever hear anything so plain?"

She literally fell upon the ill-favored bit of humanity in her arms and nearly smothered it with kisses.

"Oh, yes, he can say—"

She turned to the bald-headed man.

"Everything. Let me show.—"

But the man had gone.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Continuous Track of Steel to Boston.

THE READING'S POUGHKEEPSIE BRIDGE ROUTE.

No longer do travelers between this section of the country and New England have to undergo the discomforts of street transfer through the city of New York. This has all been obviated, and the Reading Railroad with its continuous line of steel rail now carries its passengers in trains, vestibuled from end to end, from Philadelphia to Boston without a single change of cars. This new route, which is via the great Poughkeepsie Bridge, has many attractions, and is rapidly becoming very popular. The accommodations are first-class in every respect; the trains are vestibuled from end to end and are scheduled on fast express time; the roadway is perfect, making the ride pleasant and comfortable; the country traversed abounds in grand and picturesque scenery and the coaches are very models of the car builders art. There are both day and night trains run in each direction, the day trains being vestibuled and having Pullman Buffet Parlor cars attached, and the night trains have Pullman Buffet Sleeping Cars. The east bound trains are the New England Day Express, which leaves Philadelphia 9th and Green Sts. on weekdays only at 10.00 A. M., and the New England Night Express which leaves 9th and Green Sts. at 6.45 P. M. and 24 and Chestnut Sts. at 6.20 P. M. daily, Sundays included. The westbound trains are the Quaker City Day Express which leaves Boston, (N. Y. & N. E. R. R. Summer St. depot), on weekdays only, at 9.30 A. M., and the Quaker City Night Express, which leaves Boston, (B. & M. R. R. Causeway St. depot) at 5.45 P. M. dayly, Sundays included.

COULD SAY EVERYTHING.

THE BALD-HEADED MAN GOT AS MUCH BABY TALK AS HE COULD STAND.

From the Detroit Tribune.

The birds sang blithely; a gentle refreshing breeze blayed with the green foliage; a sky of undefiled azure bent over a rejoicing world; but the young woman in the first-class coach was indifferent to all else save the ill-favored baby in her arms. Upon the infant she was showering admiration in lavish quantities. The train had proceeded about fifty miles when she found herself constrained to share ecstasy with the tall, bald-headed man just across the aisle.

"What," she rapturously demanded, gazing at the baby, "could be sweeter?"

The bald-headed man smiled in a sickly way. Several sweeter things than a baby seemed to occur to his mind, but he mentioned none.

"Nothing.

The young woman was replying to herself, radiant with maternal love.

"Nossing, no nossing wuz sweeter."

She had buried her face in the raiment of the ill-favored infant to whom she was iterating her positive declaration. The bald-headed man felt it his duty to say something.

"Does—er—ah—your baby talk?"

"Talk?"

The young woman appeared to be astonished that there should be any doubt about it.

"Why that child," she enthusiastically insisted, "can say everything."

With a triumphant smile at the tall, bald headed man the young proceeded to illustrate.

"Say mammy, tootsey."

The ill-favored baby stared vacantly.

"He's trying to remember," she proudly explained.

The illfavored baby dug its fist into its mouth.

"Say mamma tootsey."

"Goo." gurgled the infant

The young woman clasped her hands in delight.

"Did you ever hear anything so distinct?" she eagerly asked.

The bald-headed man refrained from committing himself.

"Say papa, tootsey."

Flushed with success the young woman was proceeding another step in the demonstration of the contention that the baby could say anything.

"Say papa, tootsey."

The baby emitted a nondescript grunt.

"Did you ever hear anything so plain?"

She literally fell upon the ill-favored bit of humanity in her arms and nearly smothered it with kisses.

"Oh, yes, he can say—"

She turned to the bald-headed man.

"Everything. Let me show.—But the man had gone.
